Death Cafés at Henrico County Public Library

Henrico County Public Library invites people to discuss death and dying in surprisingly upbeat and informative guided discussions. Spiritual and Bereavement Counselor Alane Miles provides a fascinating opportunity to ask any and all questions about the often taboo topics of death, dying, grief, and funeral practices, in a friendly, informal setting. Ms. Miles has twenty years of experience in the hospice field, hosts the Death Club Radio show on WRIR, and writes for Style Weekly. Registration is not required.

Over 3,500 Death Cafés have been held in over 37 countries since September 2011 and the movement has received attention from media outlets like NPR and the New York Times. Henrico County Public Library is excited to offer this opportunity for open discussion.

Upcoming Death Cafés:
